Compared to the rest of the population, adolescents at risk for substance abuse, delinquency, and smoking have shown more severe responses to pharmacological treatments, poorer treatment success, and greater relapse. As a result, youth with early substance use or delinquency are more likely to develop a chronic substance use problem. In addition, youth with a severe dual diagnosis of substance use and SUDs are the fastest growing group in the adult correctional system. Despite an abundance of research on drug and alcohol treatment, few empirically supported treatments have been developed. Treatments aimed at reducing substance abuse, particularly for adolescents, have yet to prove themselves in the real world. Recently, the National Institute on Drug Abuse released a set of recommendation for the development of efficacious treatments for substance abuse in adolescents and provided strategies to define and assess the treatment?benchmarking? needed for emerging treatments. The goal of the proposed development program is to 1) identify promising

PROMO CODE: "GENUINE"A review of literature on endobronchial ultrasound guided transbronchial needle aspiration. Endobronchial ultrasound guided transbronchial needle aspiration (EBUS-TBNA) is an alternative to traditional fine needle aspiration (FNA) and is increasingly being used in the diagnosis of lung cancer. The aim of this review was to evaluate the efficacy, complications and role of EBUS-TBNA in the diagnosis of lung cancer. Electronic databases including Medline, Embase, Web of Science, Cochrane Library, CNKI (China National Knowledge Infrastructure) and Wanfang Data were searched from their inception through June 2012. Only prospective studies or randomized controlled trials published in English and Chinese were included. The methodological quality of the studies was assessed by the Quality of Diagnostic Studies tool (QDS). A total of 36 articles were included in this review. The pooled sensitivity was 0.77 (95% CI 0.70-0.85), the specificity was 0.92 (95% CI 0.88-0.97) and the pooled diagnostic score (DOR) was 23.20 (95% CI 16.62-31.94). The overall complication rate was 0.59%. The most frequent complications were cough (0.36%) and fever (0.18%). There were also three cases of pneumothorax, two cases of hemoptysis and two cases of aspiration pneumonia. EBUS-TBNA is effective in the diagnosis of lung cancer. However, its current role in clinical practice is still limited, and the use of this technique should be reserved for cases where traditional methods are not effective or available.Carmen, Missouri Carmen is an unincorporated community in Washington County, Missouri, United States, approximately five miles east of Hermann, Missouri on Missouri Route E.
