One of the most significant of these requirements is the need to satisfy the Public Service Commission, or PSC, of New York, according to LIPA documents. If the PSC refuses to approve the merger, LIPA would either have to find another partner or seek to be annexed into New York City, where the power company already has a presence. Related The deal, which is not yet complete, is scheduled to be finalized by June 30, Con Edison has said. The merger would
