Q: Reversing an audio file in Java I'm trying to reverses an audio track in Java. It should add left and right channel of the audio file and then add both to a new array and reverse it. Here is the AudiInputStream I am using:

```
AudiInputStream audioStream = AudioSystem.getAudiInputStream(new File(fileName)); The method I want to call : public class AudioFileReader { private static File myNewFile; private static AudiInputStream sound; private static BufferedInputStream sound_input; public static void reverse() { // This method reverses the audio track } public static void main(String[] args) { System.out.println("Enter a file to load:
"); myNewFile = new File(System.getProperty("user.dir") +
```

File.separator + "src" + File.separator +
"input" + System.getProperty("file.separator")); if (myNewFile.exists()) { sound = AudioSystem.getAudioInputStream(new File(myNewFile.toString())); sound_input = new BufferedInputStream(sound);
AudioFormat format = AudioSystem.get AudioInputFormat(sound); DataLine.Info info = new DataLine.Info(Clip.class, format.getEncoding()); Clip clip = (Clip) AudioSystem.getLine(info);
clip.open(sound_input); clip.start(); if (clip.isRunning()) {

. See Kramer v. Oregon School of Pharmacy, 15 Or.App. 64, 507 P.2d 858 (1973); Fabel v. Employment Division, 52 Or.App. 467, 629 P.2d 1354 (1981). First, I believe the majority has improperly expanded the definition of the word "employment." I agree with the plurality that the legislature intended "employment" to mean any business relationship wherein the taxpayer has a "substantial stake." See Majority Opinion, at 5. Therefore, I join in the portion of the plurality opinion which defines employment as "any business or profession in which the taxpayer has a substantial stake." See id., at 7. However, unlike the plurality, I would hold that "employment" does not include service performed exclusively for a governmental unit. In my view, a number of factors indicate that the legislature did not intend to include a taxpayer's service performed exclusively for a governmental unit within the meaning of ORS 317.190(2)(d). ORS 317.190(2)(d) was included in the statute to reduce the burden that governmental units often place on taxpayers through the levying of taxes, the collection of taxes, and the expenditure of public funds. See House Committee on Revenue, Subcommittee on Revenue & Taxation, HB 2553, May 17, 1981, Tape 13, Side 7 (statement of David Coburn, Chairman of the House Committee on Revenue, Subcommittee on Revenue & Taxation). The legislature adopted the term "employment" to refer to any business relationship whereby the taxpayer has a "substantial stake." See ORS 317.190(2)(d). The meaning of the term "employment" is ambiguous. Therefore, the statute is to be construed in a manner that gives effect to the legislature's intent. See Buono v. Nettleship, 291 Or. 765, 772, 635 P.2d 7 (1981). There are several types of tax exemptions available to taxpayers. The legislature has specifically provided exemptions under ORS 317.190(1) and 317.200(1) for taxpayers, and a taxpayer may also be entitled to other kinds of tax exemptions, such as those provided in ORS 317.202 and 317.203. See generally ORS 317.190 through 317.247 (enumerating specific provisions for tax exemptions). The legislature could have exempted from taxation those who perform services exclusively for governmental units. However, it did not do so. This absence of an
