The problem is I have a list of up to about 50 images stored in UserDefaults and I've built a list where it shows image based on the last image in the list. Everything works great as it's supposed to except when I run the app the following error gets printed *** Terminating app due to uncaught exception 'NSInternalInconsistencyException', reason: '-[__NSCFString setImage:] may only be called from the main thread.' Here's some code of the class that's throwing that error. class ServiceProducts: UIViewController { var serviceUUID: String? var serviceID: Int? var serviceVisible: Bool? var serviceName: String? var serviceImages: [UIImage]? var goodsArray: [MutableArray]? override func viewDidLoad() { super.viewDidLoad() self.navigationItem.leftBarButtonItem = UIBarButtonItem(title: "Back", style:.Plain, target: self, action: #selector(didPressBack)) self.navigationItem.leftBarButtonItem?.tintColor = UIColor.blackColor() navController = UINavigationController(rootViewController: self) goodsArray = MutableArray loadService() } private func loadService() { let defaults = UserDefaults.standardUserDefaults() print(defaults.objectForKey("serviceImages") as!
