

Detailed in-game action from the players in motion will be enhanced to make the most realistic and enjoyable gameplay possible. The motion capture technology used to improve gameplay will be an integral part of the FIFA season, with each player having their own unique mechanics. “With ‘HyperMotion Technology’, FIFA, once again, gives a new dimension to the beautiful game, giving players the most realistic experience in real-life football,” said Peter Radermacher, FIFA Producer. “The use of motion capture for gameplay will also add another layer of challenge to play mode as the unpredictable player and ball motion will provide a unique experience for all fans of the sport.”

The FIFA World Cup – and each FIFA World Cup™ edition – brings the biggest, most exciting international football tournament to the world and now, fans will experience this immense competition from the unique perspective of FIFA 22. Players will create and edit their own team, then take on friends online in Local Campaigns, online Matches and online Tournaments. The best player of each nation will be crowned the World Champion. “Our new in-game player animations and ‘HyperMotion Technology’ will give players on the pitch a completely authentic experience,” said David Rutter, FIFA Chief Technology Officer. “They will be able to make more natural movements, such as going to ground, ducking and doing impressive dives. The player stats and UI-based player boosts, such as sprinting speed, will also be more authentic.” FIFA 22 boasts new features that will help players to be more aware of their surroundings. Players will be able to keep tabs on the opposition as well as teammates and surroundings to gain the upper hand in FUT Champions. They will be able to better control the ball with highly accurate lobs, accelerations and dribbles. They will also have more options to create, perform and protect attacking passes. FIFA 22 also boasts a more responsive and realistic AI, more realistic ball physics and smarter and more reliable player behaviours. These elements along with in-game cinematics will help players feel more immersed in the action than ever before. More details about FIFA 22 will be available in the coming weeks. We are preparing a year end 2022 DPR. As there were no year-end expense reports in prior year, we will be preparing Year

With the Packed House Engine (PHE), FIFA delivers three times more ball physics detail than last year's game to improve accuracy and player performance. New dribbling skills and control in the new X-Factor system mean every tackle and pass feels more authentic and dynamic. Refrain from fouls and you'll gain a step on your opponents. The passing and shooting controls get a major overhaul, giving you more control over how your play develops. Improved shooting controls make it easier to pick out a precise target with more consistent accuracy. Both receive new attributes to make them more intuitive to use. The introduction of the 10-player Squad Management Mode gives you more control over your team. Your squad can be developed to meet any tactical style from solo-minded counter-attacking through to more defensive roles. New policies provide the flexibility to keep your squad together, or pick key areas for individual development. The latest version of our Player Performance Engine (PPE) makes key gameplay moments feel more impactful and dynamic, creating more opportunities for creative players to shine. New Rotation AI transitions and behaviours mean your player is always considering the options at his disposal. You'll see more movement and make more creative decisions, as your players attempt to find the right angles for powerful shots or run into the box to knock it in.
