"The future is going to be the only place we live." - Jeremy Rifkin, The Third Industrial Revolution: How Lateral Power Will Shape Our Future An interview with writer and entrepreneur Jeremy Rifkin. Global capitalism is changing the way we live. Most people still live a life of scarcity, but in an abundance economy, we will be able to live in a permanent state of abundance. We are on the cusp of a new industrial revolution that will free us from the bonds of time and space, and will enable us to live in an "immaterial" universe of electronic networked brains. Dr. Jeremy Rifkin says this new civilization will be based on the reorganization of all of our human relations. They will be based on social networks, both as social entities and as cognitive networked brains. Rifkin, who has made a name for himself as a futurist, economic analyst, and bestselling author, argues that this new world is inevitable. At age 67, he believes that it is urgent for us to understand the new paradigm. This discussion will focus on the world in which we will live in the 21

(2) Description of the Related Art The present inventors have already proposed an engine control system capable of suppressing engine knock in Japanese patent publication No. 61-36689 or No. 61-36690 (Japanese Patent Laid-open Publication Nos. 61-36689 and 61-36690, respectively). The engine control system comprises engine operating condition determination means for determining an engine operating condition, knock suppression control means responsive to a knock suppression output signal from said determination means for suppressing combustion and thus reducing knocking caused in the engine, fuel supply control means for controlling a fuel injection quantity during a period from a point of time when the determination means determines a state of knocking to a point of time when the suppression control means suppresses the combustion, and ignition timing control means for setting a spark ignition timing earlier than a usual setting. In the engine control system, the timing of the fuel supply control means and the timing of the ignition timing control means are determined with the setting of the knock suppression control means. The setting of the knock suppression control means is determined with the engine operating condition. For example, when the engine operating condition is a high load condition, the system may set the knock suppression control means in a knocking suppressible position. In the event that the engine operating condition is a low load condition such as an engine idling state, a start of a vehicle, or a vehicle drive state, the system may set the knocking suppression control means in a knocking non 595f342e71
