NEW YORK (Reuters) - Facebook FB.O shares fell nearly 9 percent on Thursday, slipping below $200 a share for the first time since 2011, after users posted complaints on social media that the message function of the world's largest social network was malfunctioning. On Thursday, the company reported a 29 percent rise in user growth to 1.27 billion in the second quarter, its first since Facebook disclosed a security breach that could expose the personal information of as many as 87 million people. Facebook's number of monthly active users was still at a record high of 1.32 billion people, up from 1.13 billion in the first quarter, and its daily active user figure climbed to 2.23 billion, up from 1.94 billion a year earlier. Meanwhile, the number of monthly users logging into Facebook.com and mobile apps in North America rose 10 percent to 1.67 billion, up from 1.48 billion a year earlier. Facebook also disclosed a quarterly revenue gain of 19 percent, to $2.27 billion, compared with the same period a year ago, fueled by record user engagement. But it warned of an intensifying competition from rival social networks, including Snapchat SNAP.N and Twitter TWTR.N. "The revenue growth we saw in Q2 did not come at the expense of profit, as we continue to make progress building the business," Chief Executive Mark Zuckerberg said in a statement. Facebook's stock price, which has risen more than 10 percent so far this year, was down 10 percent in after-hours trading at $201.92 on the New York Stock Exchange. ♦
