[ZD1-8-M9] FREETWO CLOSED DOWN-.JERUSALEM – A retired Israeli general is calling for greater political pressure on the Egyptian government to free scores of prisoners held in Israel, as some 1,000 pro-Islamic State and other militant Islamists, including some who fought in Syria, are being held in jails across the country. The prisoners, mostly held on charges stemming from the five-day war last summer between Israel and the Hamas-run government in the Gaza Strip, are in a state of growing desperation. More than a dozen of them have been on hunger strike for more than a week, and hundreds more have protested for days and weeks on end at the entrances to their prison cells. The harsh conditions, combined with occasional Israeli security leaks, have encouraged some of the prisoners to try to kill themselves, including by hurling homemade grenades or smearing their arms and legs in order to trigger gangrene. The situation has been brought to a head over the past two weeks by a particularly troubling development: Last month, Israel allowed an Eritrean-Israeli who had been imprisoned in Israel for more than four years to leave the country. Last week, that man, Mohammed Dirawi, was assaulted and injured in a prison infirmary in Petah Tikva, the same city in which he had been imprisoned. Israel's Interior Ministry said a group of prisoners were involved in the assault. Prison guards detained three of the attackers, including a neighbor of Dirawi, the ministry said. None of the prisoners has been charged. Dirawi was released from prison in June. "We understand [Israeli Prime Minister] Benjamin Netanyahu has limited powers when it comes to the prisoners," said Roni Daniel, an analyst at the Tel Aviv-based Institute for National Security Studies. "He has no ability to transfer people to

It is a real-time fantasy role-playing game (as is always the case with Pulsipher's work, though there are several non-real-time settings included in the book).
