I have 3 lists. in list1: elements = [{"a":1}, {"a":2}, {"a":3}, {"a":4}] in list2: index = [1,0,0,0] I want to change the element in the first list by its index in list2. So I want to do something like: element = list1[index[i]] But I have this error: 'list' object has no attribute '__getitem__' A: Try: list1[list1.index(element)] = element This works because the index works on lists, not the dicts (so element = list1[1] will return the list [{'a': 1}, {'a': 2}] instead of {'a': 1}), and since dicts are lists, list1.index(element) returns a list with the index of element in the list as its first element. List.index(x) Return the index of an item, if it is present, else raise a ValueError. If the argument is not present in the list, it returns -1. ~ a New York lifestyle blog Street Art Harlem – Saturday, May 28th – If you are looking for the fun, colorful New York City style, this is it.
