An article on Popular Photography begins with a comparison of the reputations of some major brands – Apple vs Samsung, Canon vs Nikon, etc. Well, I’m not going to argue about who is the best camera brand. Lightroom and Photoshop are the best applications out there for photographers. It was such a dream for me to have a 10-year old version, and the fact that it is still working in the year 2020 makes me feel so proud of Adobe. But after having used Photoshop for the last 4 or 5 years, it just amazes me that the Photos App is not perfect as a replacement for Photoshop. If you learn all that I have learned in the last 5 years, you would feel like that most of the time. Promising, isn’t it? I feel like the best thing in life is getting your first job and learning from it. As much learning as I’ve done, I still can learn more. People who work in Photoshop all their lives are like this. I feel that we can’t live without it. Otherwise, we can’t do what we love the most. I think I can always improve my skills, but I am also not good at everything. I hope I am a good enough artist! WordPress and Google sometimes fight for my credit card information, and sometimes combine forces on everything. Ah, where should we start? Photoshop, according to the website, is the “most powerful image-editing software” with a “proven track record of designing high-quality imagery for millions of users all over the world.” I really feel that I wasted my time with free programs: Envato or Pixlr, Igeru, etc, and Photoshop is the best!
